Protest Group Reassured On Levy Increase

Firms Expected To Voluntarily Agree To Hike

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 25 — Representatives of Tullytown Borough Council were assured yesterday in a two-hour session with the Bucks County Commissioners that there is a better than even chance the Warner Company and Levitt Company, operators of the Levittown Shopping Center, will agree voluntarily to increased tax assessments without recourse to appeal on the part of the council.

Nevertheless, Arthur Leigh, one of the councilmen attending yesterday's meeting, said this morning it was certain that Tullytown Borough Council will pass a resolution enabling the filing of an appeal against what has been termed "ridiculously low Assessments" before the appeal deadline Sept. 1.

May Be Dropped

It was understood the appeal to the Bucks County Court would be withdrawn if a working agreement for increasing tax assessments of the two companies could be arrived at a meeting to be held Thursday at 2 p. m. with the commissioners, representatives of the Tullytown Borough Council and representatives of the Warner and Levitt companies.

Opinion Expected On Placing Guard At School Crossing

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Aug. 25 — Opinion on whether the Bensalem Township School Board has authority to place a guard at the Trevose Station crossing of Reading Railroad as a protection to school children is expected prior to Sept. 3.

Board Member Harry West of Trevose said today the board was "hoping we can do something about it." The opinion will be given by Attorney Lawrence A. Monroe, school board solicitor.

Doubt was cast on the board's authority to place the guard at the crossing during a discussion of the matter at the Aug. 12 meeting of the board. The crossing which may be used by 63 children going to and from school, according to Mr. West, is on private property.

The Trevose-Penn Valley Parent-Teacher Association has been asking for the crossing guard since October. Mrs. Evelyn Stahl, president of the PTA said the crossing is a danger because of fast trains which pass there in the morning. She pointed out that an alternate route, a narrow bridge on Street road, is also a hazard.

He said that the figures were based on the current 48-mill tax rate, 35 of which are earmarked for schools, six for the Borough and seven for the county.

"Commercial properties here are definitely not carrying their share of the load," he said "This inequity places the Borough on the verge of insolvency and seriously affects plans for much-needed school revenues and other Borough services."

Beating Suspect Held for Court On Four Charges

FALLSINGTON, Aug. 25 — Vidal Cintron Gomez, 20-year-old Puerto Rican farm worker who has admitted the beating of a 69-year-old Kings Farms co-worker, is being held without bail on four charges for Quarter Sessions Court, according to Justice of the Peace John Melvin.

Melvin said last night he had given Gomez a hearing Saturday, at which time charges of burglary, aggravated assault and battery; assault and battery with intent to kill; and attempt with intent to kill were lodged against the young man.

Melvin said that he faces sentences of "up to about 20 years" if convicted.

Gomez was the object of a search of a 20-man posse August 11 when an unidentified worker at the farm saw the victim, Victor Alvarez, stumble from the door of his cabin, badly beaten and bleeding profusely.

Falls Township police chief Franklin Kirby said Gomez stole and old radio, a suitcase and two fountain pens from Alvarez before the beating.

The fire lasted until about 9 p. m. when the frame buildings were all but leveled to the ground.

The Bucks County Rescue Squad provided arc light illumination for the operation and stood by with an ambulance in case it were needed.

Members of the Cornwells, Eddington, Union, Newport, Newportville and Croydon Fire companies jockeyed their fire trucks in a rough circle around the site of the fire and had hoses unfurled ready to play water on any adjacent property that stray sparks might have set on fire.

This morning Police Chief George Rontz said the fire went off according to schedule and, at its height, supplied a really substantial blaze that lit up the night for miles around as the flames crackled and roared, their orange tongues licking the night sky.

The fire lasted until about 9 p. m. when the frame buildings were all but leveled to the ground.

The idea of the fire arose when the owners of the used car lot, seeking an increase the lot by the addition of the site on which the old frame houses sat, considered built.

Four Discharged In Theft of Boat

Justice of the Peace George Zarr yesterday discharged four of the six boys involved Sunday in an alleged attempt to steal a 14-foot motor boat in Bensalem Township.

Justice Zarr's office is located in Humesville.

The two boys who were caught inside the boat are being held in lieu of $300 bail and will receive a further hearing Wednesday on charges of larceny, according to Zarr.

Maximum penalty, if convicted, is five years' imprisonment.

Two Echo Beach boys, boating in the area at the time, spotted the suspects in a friend's launch and detained them until Township police arrived at the scene. Police then rounded up the other four boys, who admitted being together. Three of the youths are juveniles. The two being held are Robert Schwarz, 4811 Mulberry St., and Raymond Reeder, 1927 John St., Philadelphia. Both are 18.

FAST SALE

"Please cancel my classified ad for an electric range for sale," Mrs. John W. Firth, 1117 Fourth Avenue, Croydon, said yesterday morning. "I sold it on Saturday, the day the ad first appeared. Then the phone still kept ringing until 10:30 Sunday night."

Fergusonville Group Backs Secrecy Ban

FERGUSONVILLE, Aug. 25 — The Community Center and Improvement Association here last night went on record supporting the Levittown Civic Association in its quest to abolish closed meetings.

Program Chairman Albert S. Flood, Jr., of Newportville, said that the group will cooperate to eliminate "all questionable activities on the part of government officials on a local and county level."

The support of the Levittown group came after that organization voted last week to establish a malfeasance investigating committee to investigate the activities of the Bristol Township Commissioners on the night of July 15, when they allegedly passed a township ordinance at a closed meeting. The ordinance was said to have accepted streets in five sections of Levittown.

Flood praised the Civic Association and the newly-organized Press Association of Bucks County, which were the principal complainants. He said the improvement group

Press Gets View Of Operations At New Dial Exchange

EMILIE, Aug. 25 — Members of the press were given a preview of the new Windsor telephone building and its equipment last evening.

The building on Newportville Road at Emilie is the second step in the phone company's Jenkins town area toward nation-wide dialing. Windsor, when it goes into service, Sunday Aug. 30, will provide telephone service for Levittown, Fairless Hills and vicinity.

The newspapermen were divided into groups and each group had as guides representatives of the Bell Company. The intricate workings of the modern equipment were explained in detail by the guides.

It was shown how on next Sunday morning a group of men with long strings in their hands will be standing in the new telephone building waiting for a signal which will put the new Windsor dial telephone central office in operation. The switchover will start at 1 a. m.

Reckless Driving Charges Sought

Two motorists were issued summonses for alleged reckless driving by Bristol Borough police as the result of a collision yesterday afternoon at 1:45 at the intersection of Bath road and New Lincoln highway.

A car owned and operated by William Rahaves, Jr., Newport road, RD 2, was proceeding west on Route 13 when another vehicle owned and operated by Louis Loeffler, Croydon, RD 1, which was making a left turn into Bath road, struck Rahaves' auto.

The left front fender of Rahaves' auto was pushed all the way in to the side of the Motor by the collision. Loeffler's car was damaged in its grille, bumper, and left front fender.

Patrolman Gasper Favoroso and William Shire are in charge of the case.

Board To Discuss Building Program

LANGHORNE, Aug. 25 — Plans for construction of a new Junior High School will be discussed today at 8 p. m. in the Old Langhorne High School by the Neshaminy Joint School Board, Dr. Oliver S. Heckman, Regional Superintendent of the School District said.

Application for the school has already been approved by the State Department of Education at Harrisburg, John E. Paul, president of the school board reported.

Also on the agenda is setting of the date for opening of the fall school term.

TREVOZE HEIGHTS, Aug. 25 — Two persons were provided with emergency transportation aid yesterday by the Trevoze Heights Rescue Squad.

Knapp said he would not stop investigating with commercial assessments, but continue into water and sewage problems, too.

"The Levittown Pennsylvania Corporation is getting $25,000 rental this year for water and sewers," he said. "Figuring 5000 homes in Levittown, that means each homeowner is paying $25 for those rights. We will make a survey shortly to determine what other municipalities are paying, and see if that figure can't be reduced. As it stands now it is just as silly as the proportionately low figure on assessments."

Help Child Gain Reading Skill

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

BY the time the child reaches the fifth or sixth grade, most of his learning consists of reading. He may have no regular lessons in reading, but he must read textbooks and reference books in geography, history, elementary science and English. Even most of his mathematics requires him to read problems.

When a child lags or fails in any one of his subjects of the upper grades, high school or college, he usually fails in reading. The longer a child is in school, the more his success depends on his ability to get ideas from the printed page—on reading skill.

Suppose your son or daughter has found it hard sledding in the fifth, tenth or twelfth grade, or even in college, during the past few years. You can be almost sure this child is a poor reader. If you ask him to read a bit aloud to you from a textbook he used last year and then to tell you in a few words of his own what he has read, you may be amazed at his difficulties.

But don't express any amazement or suggest that he should read better. Most of all, you should not talk of his reading lag or have him read in the presence of other persons, especially of a brother, sister or pal. You should aim to help him save his face.

Without a word of disappointment, discouragement or of criticism of his teachers, try to make him see that his school work would be so much easier for him if he improved his skill at reading. It would be wonderful if you found ways of helping him yourself to improve his reading, or found a competent tutor for him.

Easier Reading Material

For you or the tutor to succeed with this child, he must be led to see that he can make best gains at reading by practicing on interesting reading matter which is much easier than his regular textbooks. Help him choose such easy materials, which can be found in magazines, newspapers, mail catalogues and various other sources about the home or in the public library. Let his interest be your chief guide in these selections. As he practices, he must feel worthy, and not ashamed.

In spite of all you have read about speed at reading, ignore this factor. Put your sole emphasis on success. As he gains at getting meaning from what he reads, he will naturally speed up. When, by and by, you help him read from one of his regular textbooks, encourage him to take his time, but to read a few sentences or a paragraph and then tell what he has read in a few words of his own.

A special meeting of the Bristol Township commissioners will be held this evening at 7:30 p. m. in the township police building to discuss prospective increases for police officers.

men; Chief Bucks County Assessor Elwood Britton, and Commissioners Thomas R. Lewis, Joseph W. Hallowell.

The meeting on Thursday was expected to be attended by Mrs. Frances Strouse, Tullytown Borough assessor, who okayed the present assessments.

At the outset of the meeting, the commissioners tried to establish a friendly atmosphere by agreeing it was quite evident all land in Bucks county had increased in value materially over last year's figures. They expressed the opinion that both sides to the issue could "get together" on a possible settlement so that no appeal would be necessary.

Settlement Pattern

The following pattern of what was to be proposed for settling the issue grew out of the meeting: The Levittown shopping center would be assessed at $7,000 per acre for the developed commercial area, $2,400 per acre for land not yet developed, such as the parking area, $7 per square foot for store interiors, and $200 per front foot, for the ground on which the stores are located.

These proposals were made by Leigh and Lucisano on behalf of the borough council.

The commissioners also thought that "no doubt" the Warner Company would be agreeable to having the 735 acres they own increased in assessment valuation. Some of the land there is currently assessed at $54.61½ per acre, of which some is under water. The commissioners believed assessments on Warner ground not yet mined for sand could be increased without any trouble.

Federal employment dropped 116,999 during the fiscal year ended June 30.

Bucks Bankers Hit Phila. National On Merger Plan

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 25 — The Bucks County Bankers Association, after a special meeting last night at the Doylestown Inn, lashed out at the Philadelphia National Bank for its move to merge with the First National Bank of Conshohocken.

A statement for the Association, issued by Secretary Elmer Cates, of Chalfont, read:

"The proposed merger between Philadelphia National Bank and First National Bank of Conshohocken has caused consternation among banking circles and particularly among the banking institutions in the counties contiguous to Philadelphia and concern as to the extent to which this move may grow.

"Which bank may be the next target for merger with a large metropolitan institution? Which area of our county will next lose its locally owned, controlled, and operated financial institution are matters of great concern to the Bucks County Bankers Association.

"Philadelphia National Bank has announced its policy to be that it will follow its customers as they move. There are no limits beyond which this bank may go to follow its customers, and a state-wide chain or branches is clearly envisioned and must be the goal of such a policy."

would write immediately to the Bristol Township Civic Association, the Township Better Government Committee and "other interested groups" to obtain support for the move.

"We hope this way to promote a better understanding between the citizens, and local, state and federal governments."

Flood also asked "school boards" to take note of the action taken by the Commissioners when they opened meetings recently to press and public.

The sewage disposal plant under construction here was discussed with six residents complaining that in laying interceptor pipe lines, the contractor caused damage to their properties totalling approximately $5000.

The complainants, Edward Buck, of Cedar avenue; Rudolph Fritsch, Ritter avenue; Charles Eill, Sr., Pine avenue and Frederick Hesselthaler, Henry Bogarde and Jorg Nyman, of Newportville road, said digging for the sewer line dried up wells, cracked foundation walls of a home, destroyed a terrace and made a road bed useless, making a five-acre plot inaccessible.

Seeks Complaints

Roy Hansen, secretary of the organization, asked residents to file complaints with him, to be turned over to Bristol Township Solicitor Robert Baker. Hansen said Baker will refer the complaints to the Falls Township Municipal Authority, builders of the sewer line and plant. The secretary said he will try to arrange to attend a meeting of the Authority tomorrow night.

A letter from Dr. Samuel Katz, secretary of the Bristol township board of health reporting on a check of alleged odors from the new sewage plant was read to civic group. "At the time of the surveys no offensive odors were evident," Dr. Katz said. "Of course we are aware that other conditions may have a bearing on these problems, he wrote, "and we will continue to make observations from time to time."

Bogarde said that Township Health Officer Charles Simpson, responding to a sewer odor complaint from Mrs. Bogarde shortly before the meeting started, found the odors present. At the meeting 65 complaints were reported. The residents said the odors were usually present evenings from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

They then approached Chief Rentz and representatives of the fire companies, who gave their okay for the burning exercises.

This morning there was no evidence of the houses except a black, charred square on which they stood yesterday. The fire had been so thorough only a fine black ash remained.

Man Shoots Wife

HARRISBURG — A 47-year-old Steelton man was held by police today on charges of killing his wife with a point blank blast from a single barreled 20-gauge shotgun. Police said Cleudis Pollard shot his wife after coming home drunk. Pollard walked two blocks to a police station and gave himself up.

Pella Riding High

ROME — A decisive margin in winning a vote of confidence from Italy's Chamber of Deputies raised hopes today that Giuseppe Pella's Christian Democratic government may survive longer than a mere few weeks. Overcoming the opposition of the Communists and left-wing Socialists, Pella won by a vote of 315 to 215.

Transportation Up

Paris — Rail service, both local and long distance, picked up considerably in France today when workers spurned Communist appeals to continue their strike and returned instead to their jobs. However, the military trucks still were used to help some suburbanites get to work.

New Arab Army

CAIRO — Agence France Presse quoted an informed source as saying that Egypt will propose creation of a multi-nation, 152,000-man Arab army when the Arab chiefs of staff meet today in Cairo. The plan reportedly calls for stationing the eight divisions of 19,000 men each in the troubled Canal Zone.

New Hope Owner Seeks Persian Cat

The two-year-old cat had been placed in a kennel while the owner was away. Mrs. Strassburger didn't know of its disappearance until last week end, when she returned home. She is anxiously awaiting word of its having been found, either in the Warrington area or in Solebury township.

The demands of farmers for a counter to railroad monopoly in the nineteenth century were largely responsible for the public regulation of American railroads, says a study to be issued by the Twentieth Century Fund.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of valour.—Ju. 6:12.
That faith enabled ancient heroes to put armies of aliens to flight. He is with us too.

Who'll Be Next?

As matters stand in Russia today Premier Malenkov is in command of the situation. There are many indications that he has taken over, and stands almost alone as the head of the government. His latest move in that direction was the recent announcement concerning Russia's progress in perfecting the hydrogen bomb, and for which he took full credit. This claim does not coincide with known facts.

Until a few weeks ago Lavrenti Beria had bossed the entire Soviet atomic weapons development program. Beria had held top priority and top secret special administration of the Council of Ministers, and during his regime had built Soviet factories which were developing both atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Whatever progress has been made, and whatever the weapons which Malenkov now takes to his own credit, came from the Beria program. But where is Beria? In disgrace and in prison, awaiting trial and presumably death as a traitor.

Beria was Malenkov's chief deputy, and had shared honors with him since the death of Stalin. Both had spoken at Stalin's funeral. Now Malenkov has eliminated his rival, as he will others who seek prominence in government. Already there is speculation over who will come after Malenkov has gone the way of Beria.

That is his destiny, according to all the rules of communism as practiced in Russia.

Strike Endangers Marquis' Party

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 — (INS) — You got troubles? I got troubles? Honey, we never had it so good!

You want proof? Just glance through the daily newspaper and tote up the people with real troubles. You want to hear about a man behind a king-size eight-ball? Get set: This is a five-handerchief epic.

The Marquis George De Cuevas, I read in the papers, is "literally pulling his hair and wringing his hands in despair, for he's in a mortal fear that the general strike that has totally paralyzed France will not be settled by Sept. 1."

So the Marquis is in despair because the general strike may push shaky France over the political cliff into civil war, anarchy and/or Communism?

Don't be silly, Bill. The Marquis has more from France to worry about. He's got global worries. The Marquis has invited 2,000 guests "from four continents" to a sumptuous ball on his estate near Biarritz on Sept. 1 and if the French general strike continues "Cuevas sadly realizes that a majority of his guests will not be able to attend his 'fete champetre' which has already cost him so much money."

"But money will be no obstacle to Cuevas who — has even built artificial lakes to add to the decor."

Don't laugh, boys! The poor devil is probably dying this very minute if the strike isn't settled as this goes to press. Just think: All those hors d'oeuvres and no guests. One tray of left-over hors d'oeuvres is enough to make any host take the pledge. But left-over hors d'oeuvres for 2,000! It staggers the imagination.

This party was on simple passing flight of hospitality. Invitations to it were dispatched to four continents in February, so that guests could have ample time to plan appropriate eighteenth century costumes, for the host "hopes to equal the pomp of kings Louis XIV, XV and XVI," according to my paper.

No one can say the man ain't got ambition, as well as trouble. I only regret he didn't add Louis XIII and Louis XVII and make it a real royal flush. And now the whole thing may have to be called on account of a strike. "Apres moi le deluge," said Louis XIV. But who ever dreamed the water would be hot?

The fete, my paper continues, has been planned by Cuevas to outdo a $50,000 wing-ding given by a Mexican senator named Beistegui in Venice two years ago to which "2,000 persons from four continents" were also invited.

This brings up an interesting question. Which continent is socially unacceptable? Which continent was snubbed in both instances? Or do Cuevas and Beistegui draw the line at different continents? Is some continent missing from the social register and the Almanac De Gottha these days?

Perhaps this is a matter for the United Nations. Let the snubbed continent come forward and state its case. Man does not live by bread alone when there is champagne for the asking.

Also, do Cuevas and Beistegui invite the same 2,000 persons? Is that the size to which the 400 has grown? It is important to us American taxpayers that we know for sure, since Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has applied for relief in New York.

Cuevas, who married a granddaughter of the original John D. Rockefeller, has been suffering no pain since, until the French strike imperiled his resurrection of Louis XIV, XV and XVI.

But the Marquis has not spent old John D's money in vain, even should the strike continue past Sept. 1, he can always go out and jump in one of those artificial lakes specially built for his party.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.
(Copyright, 1952,
King Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

This column is written at the open window of a first floor room at a little family hotel on the beach Mrs. Lewis and I have been bringing the children, off and on for 20 years. A half mile behind me is the Wright Memorial, on the spot here the first airplane flight took place; in front, the ocean.

LEWIS, JR.

About 20 feet outside my window, two small boys have fascinated me for the last hour. One looks to be about 12 or 13, has vermilion red hair and a crown-jewel collection of freckles. The other is about 10, a crew-cut blond with frugal, elastic-waisted shorts that once were kakhi colored. The younger is quite tan; he has been here several weeks. The older obviously is a newcomer. I haven't seen him before, and his skin is pristine white.

Together, they are digging a hole in the sand; not the normal sort of hole which youngsters dig in beach sand, for fun, but a large hole, about a yard in diameter. And they keep digging it deeper and deeper. They are working assiduously, barely taking time to speak to each other, using short regulation army pack spades about 20 inches long, with a tee-handle. The sand which they dig out, they form in a neat and careful mound around the top.

My curiosity gets the better of me. I leave my typewriter at the window, shamble down the hall and out of the building, and ask whether they'd mind telling me what they're doing. The red head responds pleasantly: "Foxhole, of course."

By this time the hole is about four feet deep. The red head contemplates the project, grabs a piece of driftwood shaped vaguely like a gun, places it against his shoulder, and aims over the rim at an imaginary enemy. He is satisfied with the depth, tries it out on his companion, and again is satisfied. They both climb out of the hole. The red head withdraws about 10 to 15 yards, then, with driftwood in hand comes on a full crouching run and jumps in, combat fashion.

Pray God he can.

And my generation did this to them. It was my generation, really, that dug that foxhole in the sand. Those pack spades were labelled Acheson, Hiss and Co. . . . made in Yalta.

And for all of these wars, there has been no achievement. The things that supposedly were won in World War II have been dissipated into oblivion; evaporated. Korea has accomplished nothing, except death for lads like these in foxholes like this one.

My generation is responsible for this and all that goes with it.

Walking up the path from the ocean comes by own son, six-feet-two, blond, rangy. His trunks drip sea water, his white teeth sparkle through a grin. He's an honor student, superior musician, handsome figure, clean fine find — superior youngster.

Planning Group Surveys Action On Zoning Shift

NEWTOWN, Aug. 25—The rezoning of South State street from a residential to a commercial area was apparently the subject of a closed meeting by the Planning Commission recently.

The proposed move, a controversial issue in this area, will remain in Planning Commission hands until Sept. 9, when the commission is scheduled to make recommendation on the issue to the borough council.

J. Stanley Lee, commission chairman, said the group "merely surveyed" the question at its Monday meeting, but he announced "we are also going to consider a recommendation to install new curb lines on North Lincoln avenue."

May Have Interest

Lee said he thought some opponents to the reclassification of Lower State street disqualify themselves in view of the fact that many of them either operate commercial enterprises within the residential zone or have an interest in such enterprises.

"Of the 19 properties in the South State street area," Lee said, "six properties are openly non-conforming with the residential classification."

Three-Fourths Required

He denied that it only requires 20 per cent or more of property owners to block automatically any zoning changes in Newtown. He said where opposition exists an affirmative vote of three-fourths of borough council members is required to place the change in effect.

At its August meeting council referred the matter to the Planning Commission.

Construction is expected to be completed about the middle of October.

Your Birthday by STELLA

TUESDAY, AUGUST 25 — Born today, you are something of a cynic. A keen observer of human motivations, you have a vivid imagination and real literary talent.

You probably will be able to make a worthwhile career in popular literature, drama, or might become interested in radio or television. You are highly adaptable and are able to deal adequately with all kinds of changing conditions. Personally, you dislike handling minute detail and would prefer to delegate it to others, leaving your energies free for developing an idea or a plan of action for others.

Your emotions are rather volatile at times, and you will need to cultivate self-control in this respect. You are affectionate and fond of members of the opposite sex. However, since you are temperamental, it will be necessary for you to exert great caution when it comes to selecting your marriage partner. Unless you find "the one" early in life, it might be wise to postpone marriage until you have reached a definite success in your career.

You are not quite astute in business matters as you think you are, for you are inclined to act on impulse, rather than think through a project before accepting something that looks glamorous and exciting. Investigate all the facts first.

NEW YORK—It costs almost six per cent more to run an automobile now than it did two years ago, the American Automobile Assn. reports.

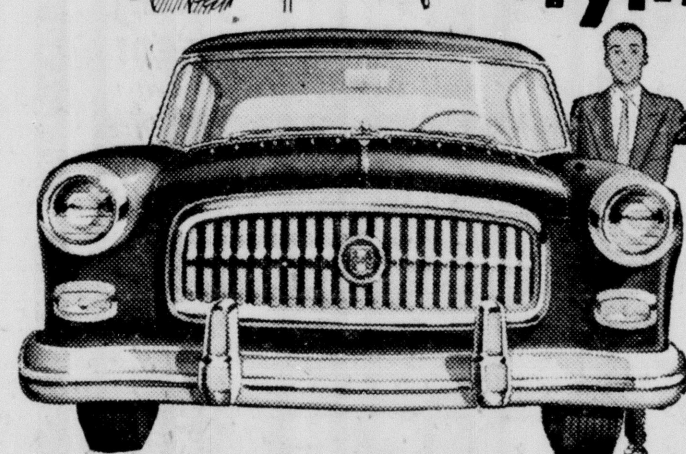

Reporting its findings after a nationwide survey, the association said over-all car upkeep this year—for the average motorist who drives 10,000 miles annually—amounts to $908. The average figure in 1951 was $861.

The survey covered increases ranging from gasoline and oil prices to insurance fees.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of valour. — Ju. 6:12.
That faith enabled ancient heroes to put armies of aliens to flight. He is with us too.

Who'll Be Next?

As matters stand in Russia today Premier Malenkov is in command of the situation. There are many indications that he has taken over, and stands almost alone as the head of the government. His latest move in that direction was the recent announcement concerning Russia's progress in perfecting the hydrogen bomb, and for which he took full credit. This claim does not coincide with known facts.

Until a few weeks ago Lavrenti Beria had bossed the entire Soviet atomic weapons development program. Beria had held top priority and top secret special administration of the Council of Ministers, and during his regime had built Soviet factories which were developing both atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Whatever progress has been made, and whatever the weapons which Malenkov now takes to his own credit, came from the Beria program. But where is Beria? In disgrace and in prison, awaiting trial and presumably death as a traitor.

Beria was Malenkov's chief deputy, and had shared honors with him since the death of Stalin. Both had spoken at Stalin's funeral. Now Malenkov has eliminated his rival, as he will others who seek prominence in government. Already there is speculation over who will come after Malenkov has gone the way of Beria.

That is his destiny, according to all the rules of communism as practiced in Russia.

Strike Endangers Marquis' Party

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 — (INS) — You got troubles? I got troubles! Honey, we never had it so good!

You want proof? Just glance through the daily newspaper and tote up the people with real troubles. You want to hear about a man behind a king-size eight-ball? Get set: This is a five-handerchief epic.

The Marquis George De Cuevas, I read in the papers, is "literally pulling his hair and wringing his hands in despair, for he's in a mortal fear that the general strike that has totally paralyzed France will not be settled by Sept. 1."

So the Marquis is in despair because the general strike may push shaky France over the political cliff into civil war, anarchy and/or Communism?

Don't be silly, Bill. The Marquis has more than France to worry about. He's got global worries. The Marquis has invited 2,000 guests "from four continents" to a sumptuous ball on his estate near Biarritz on Sept. 1 and if the French general strike continues "Cuevas sadly realizes that a majority of his guests will not be able to attend his 'fete champetre' which has already cost him so much money."

"But money will be no obstacle to Cuevas who — has even built artificial lakes to add to the decor."

Don't laugh, boys! The poor devil is probably dying this very minute if the strike isn't settled as this goes to press. Just think: All those hors d'oeuvres and no guests. One tray of left-over hors d'oeuvres is enough to make any host take the pledge. But left-over hors d'oeuvres for 2,000! It staggers the imagination.

This party was on simple passing flight of hospitality. Invitations to it were dispatched to four continents in February, so that guests could have ample time to plan appropriate eighteenth century costumes, for the host "hopes to equal the pomp of kings Louis XIV, XV and XVI," according to my paper.

No one can say the man ain't got ambition, as well as trouble. I only regret he didn't add Louis XIII and Louis XVII and make it a real royal flush. And now the whole thing may have to be called on account of a strike. "Après moi le déluge," said Louis XIV. But who ever dreamed the water would be hot?

The fete, my paper continues, has been planned by Cuevas to outdo a $50,000 wing-ding given by a Mexican senator named Beistegui in Venice two years ago to which "2,000 persons from four continents" were also invited.

This brings up an interesting question. Which continent is socially unacceptable? Which continent was snubbed in both instances? Or do Cuevas and Beistegui draw the line at different continents? Is some continent missing from the social register and the Almanac De Gotha these days?

Perhaps this is a matter for the United Nations. Let the snubbed continent come forward and state its case. Man does not live by bread alone when there is champagne for the asking.

Also, do Cuevas and Beistegui invite the same 2,000 persons? Is that the size to which the 400 has grown? It is important to us American taxpayers that we know for sure, since Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has applied for relief in New York.

Cuevas, who married a granddaughter of the original John D. Rockefeller, has been suffering no pain since, until the French strike imperiled his resurrection of Louis XIV, XV and XVI.

But the Marquis has not spent old John D's money in vain, even should the strike continue past Sept. 1, he can always go out and jump in one of those artificial lakes specially built for his party.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

This column is written at the open window of a first floor room at a little family hotel on the beach Mrs. Lewis and I have been bringing at Kill Devil Hills, N. C., to which the children, off and on for 20 years. A half mile behind me is the Wright Memorial, on the spot here the first airplane flight took place; in front, the ocean.

About 20 feet outside my window, two small boys have fascinated me for the last hour. One looks to be about 12 or 13, has vermilion red hair and a crown-jewel collection of freckles. The other is about 10, a crew-cut blond with frugal, elastic-waisted shorts that once were khaki colored. The younger is quite tan; he has been here several weeks. The older obviously is a newcomer. I haven't seen him before, and his skin is pristine white.

Together, they are digging a hole in the sand; not the normal sort of hole which youngsters dig in beach sand, for fun, but a large hole, about a yard in diameter. And they keep digging it deeper and deeper.

They are working assiduously, barely taking time to speak to each other, using short regulation army pack spades about 20 inches long, with a tee-handle. The sand which they dig out, they form in a neat and careful mound around the top.

My curiosity gets the better of me. I leave my typewriter at the window, shamble down the hall and out of the building, and ask whether they'd mind telling me what they're doing. The red head responds pleasantly:

"Foxhole, of course."

By this time the hole is about four feet deep. The red head contemplates the project, grabs a piece of driftwood shaped vaguely like a gun, places it against his shoulder, and aims over the rim at an imaginary enemy. He is satisfied with the depth, tries it out on his companion, and again is satisfied.

They both climb out of the hole. The red head withdraws about 10 to 15 yards, then, with driftwood in hand comes on a full crouching run and jumps in, combat fashion.

It is excellently done. The tow-head, edited by the demonstration, follows suit. Less smooth, but after a half hour of lessons he too is excellent.

Then they head for the surf.

It is not unusual that boys should dig in the sand, or should play war. It is very unusual that they should do both with so much expenditure of work and intensity and that they should be so versed in adult battle techniques. Real life foxholes.

Then I realize uncomfortably that they have never known anything but war. They were born in war, and there has been war ever since, most of the time wars in which their country was engaged.

I realize also that unless a miracle takes place in the Korean negotiations, these youngsters themselves will be part of those wars in the too near future.

War has become an integral and standard ingredient in human existence, so far as they have known human existence; not an occasional extremity, for the preservation of principles and the protection of a way of life and a national honor, but a continuing thing, as much a part of life as waking up in the morning and eating and breathing.

And my generation did this to them. It was my generation, really, that dug that foxhole in the sand. Those pack spades were labeled Acheson, Hiss and Co. . . . made in Yalta.

And for all of these wars, there has been no achievement. The things that supposedly were won in World War II have been dissipated into oblivion; evaporated. Korea has accomplished nothing, except death for lads like these in foxholes like this one.

My generation is responsible for this and all that goes with it.

Walking up the path from the ocean comes by own son, six-feet-two, blond, rangy. His trunk drips sea water, his white teeth sparkle through a grin. He's an honor student, superior musician, handsome figure, clean fine find — superior youngster.

He almost stumbles into the fox hole in the sand, then stops and with the driftwood, begins to fill back the sand to level.

Pray God he can.

By All Means, Get Some Sun, But Be Sure to Protect Skin

Protect skin from sun with lotions—one that promotes a tan or one that's tan-proof and will keep complexion milky-white.

By HELEN FULLETT

SUN can put vitamins in your system and ginger in your heels, but it can also do a lot of mischief to your skin!

Sun can scatter freckles on an impertinent nose. It can turn a burning eye upon flesh and cause blisters unless protective means are employed. It can tan in spots, causing the face to look patchy and spotty.

Sun also harms hair. It can scorch locks, making them crisp and brittle and causing funny color changes to take place. Such streaks are no aid to beauty.

Use Tanning Oil

During the entire summer season, a tanning oil should be used so the complexion won't take on a coarse, leathery look.

Oil should also be applied to the hair the night before a shampoo. Or, perhaps you would prefer a hair ointment of thin consistency that is compounded for this purpose.

pose. It gives locks a well-groomed look.

Protect your arms by creaming them. In summer, tan makes a girl look healthy and active. The trouble is that tan does not fade away when the leaves begin to fall. It tends to turn yellow, a shade that doesn't enhance winter clothes.

Slow Treatment

At summer's end, the beauty shops have cash-customers clamoring to have skin bleached white, but the process is slow. You just can't make a new roses-and-cream face out of a toasted one overnight.

The moral of this tale is get yourself a supply of nourishing creams. Use them freely. Never wash your face with soap and water immediately after exposure to strong sunlight or a dust-laden atmosphere. Instead, apply cream several times, removing with tissues after each application.

Text: Romans 8:6 — "To set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit is life and peace."

The eternal conflict in all of our lives is that between the flesh and the Spirit. It is a maxim of all peoples that 'the Spirit is willing but the flesh is weak'. The battle of right and wrong, good and evil, is constant and devastating. The only way that we can find the peace that we all yearn for is to set our minds on the living Christ, and continually put down the temptations that seek to destroy our equilibrium. To set your mind on the Spirit, you must pray for strength to overcome evil. Many people wait until they are in trouble to pray; that is not good. The time to pray is when you feel the power of temptation coming over you. It is better to pray for a spiritual life of joy, peace, love and happiness than it is to wait until you have committed evil and then pray for deliverance. St. Paul tells us that those who are in the flesh cannot please God (Rom. 8:8). Let us pray: Teach us, O Living Spirit, to so channel our thoughts and ideas that we will indeed live a life of the Spirit. Open unto us the ways of truth and wisdom; keep us from temptation; destroy within us the power of evil before it overcomes us. Forgive us and grant us true humility. Amen

Botanist To Speak At Crossing Park

WASHINGTON CROSSING, Aug. 25 — "Wild Flowers of New Jersey" will be the subject of the lecture delivered by David Fables at Washington Crossing Park on Friday evening, announced Park Botanist Norman C. Fisher.

Fables, a professor of biology at the Union Junior College at Cranford, N. J., has been interested in the study of wild flowers for the past twenty years. His color slides will include orchids native to Pennsylvania as well as New Jersey. Many of these plants can be seen only by trudging long distances into some of the most difficult and inaccessible regions of the Pine Barrens, but Mr. Fables will provide a comfortable "armchair tour" of the territory.

The illustrated talk, which is the third of a series of summer lectures, will be given in the Bowman's Hill pavilion at dusk. The public is invited to attend.

Annual surplus of births over deaths per thousand of population rose in the U. S. from a low of 5 in 1936 to nearly 16 in 1947, highest in history, points out a forthcoming Twentieth Century Fund study.

Veterans Office Shifts To Newest Location

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 25—Enjoying the most satisfactory arrangement in more than a decade, the Veterans Affairs of Bucks County office, with Richard J. Murray as the director, is now located on the first floor in the Court House here.

The new location occupies the former office of the Bucks County Quarter Sessions Court. It is located on the first floor and is the first door on the right hand side of the corridor, just inside the East Court street side entrance.

Director Murray, a Spanish-American and World War I veteran, who has been in charge of veterans affairs in the county for 12 years, is on duty from 8:30 a. m. until 4 p. m. in his office which is open every day the Court House is open.

Too Small

The office, which was too small for the fast-growing criminal court proceedings and expansion in domestic relations and criminal matters, has been attractively redecorated. The walls have been repainted a light green, the floors sanded and waxed and the filing cases are being repainted.

Director Murray said his office also takes care of the registration of veterans' graves in Bucks

Bible's Long Trip Is Told by Laverie

HULMEVILLE, Aug. 25 — The guest speaker in Neshamony Methodist Church, Sunday morning, was William Laverie.

Mr. Laverie's message revolved about the miraculous manner in which a Bible he had presented to a young clergyman, turned up in a "Fuzzy-Wuzzy's" hut in New Guinea, where Laverie was taken after his plane was shot down during World War II. The Bible was taken to the hut to be shown to Laverie after one of the primitive tribesmen recognized Laverie from his picture pasted in the fly-leaf.

The Bible had passed into the hands of the Christian tribesman after the original recipient (who had also served as a medical missionary in New Guinea) had been killed by the Japanese.

Veterans Office Shifts To Newest Location

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 25 — Enjoying the most satisfactory arrangement in more than a decade, the Veterans Affairs of Bucks County office, with Richard J. Murray as the director, is now located on the first floor in the Court House here.

The new location occupies the former office of the Bucks County Quarter Sessions Court. It is located on the first floor and is the first door on the right hand side of the corridor, just inside the East Court street side entrance.

Director Murray, a Spanish-American and World War I veteran, who has been in charge of veterans affairs in the county for 12 years, is on duty from 8:30 a. m. until 4 p. m. in his office which is open every day the Court House is open.

Too Small

The office, which was too small for the fast-growing criminal court proceedings and expansion in domestic relations and criminal matters, has been attractively redecorated. The walls have been repainted a light green, the floors sanded and waxed and the filing cases are being repainted.

Director Murray said his office also takes care of the registration of veterans' graves in Bucks Veterans' Office.

"I can remember when I would have 15 or 20 veterans sitting in the office waiting their turn to be served," said Murray. "The rush isn't so heavy these days."

Aids Veterans

Director Murray said he aids veterans with their insurance problems, saving them the trouble of going to Philadelphia to obtain the proper forms. He also helps them with their personal problems, aids them in getting work or a job in an industry and gives them advice concerning schoolings, benefits and other needs.

The Bucks County Veterans Administration was first housed in the Administration Building, Monument Square, Doylestown, first in the basement and later on the second floor. The office was moved to the Court House during World War II in 1943.

Director Murray said a new reorganization of the Veterans Administration in Washington, D. C., will take place Sept. 8. H. V. Higley, of Wisconsin, is the new VA director.

Dellmuth, vice president, Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co., outlined the four-point challenge as follows: "to thoroughly train bank employees on the vocational aspects of their respective assignments; to develop the highest degree of banker understanding of the problems facing the customers he serves; to educate the general public on the merits of the American system of banking as compared with other systems of banking; and to comprehend the relationship between our daily responsibilities and the world-wide economic, political, social, and religious change which is constantly taking place."

The dinner meeting was opened by T. Allen Glenn, Jr., president of the Peoples National Bank of Norristown and director of the summer school, when he introduced C. S. STATE COLLEGE, Aug. 25 — More than 200 bankers from 50 of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania heard that "There is a four-fold educational challenge facing American banking today," at the official opening of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association Summer School here Sunday. The bankers have returned to college for an intensive week-long school on modern banking procedures sponsored by the PBA and The Pennsylvania State College.

Attending from banks of Bucks County are Doyle H. Holland, of Farmers National Bank, Bristol; William H. High, Perkiss Trust Co.; and Alfred G. Laubach, Merchants National Bank, Quakertown. In the keynote address, Carl K. Dellmuth, vice president, Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co., outlined the four-point challenge as follows, "to thoroughly train bank employees on the vocational aspects of their respective assignments; to develop the highest degree of banker understanding of the problems facing the customer he serves; to educate the general public on the merits of the American system of banking as compared with other systems of banking; and to comprehend the relationship between our daily responsibilities and the world-wide economic, political, social, and religious change which is constantly taking place."

The dinner meeting was opened by T. Allen Glenn, Jr., president of the Peoples National Bank of Norristown and director of the summer school, when he introduced C. S. Wyand, assistant to the president of The Pennsylvania State College. Mr. Wyand officially welcomed the bankers back to college in behalf of Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the college.
